The Katie Rose Benefit Dinner

Twenty month old Katie Rose has a rare medical condition known as a lymphatic malformation in her mouth. This benign tumor is so invasive that it is going to be incredibly difficult to remove. The surgeon that has finally agreed to take her case is located in New York, so that is where Katie and her parents must travel at least three times at their expense for her surgeries and other treatments.

Please help us to help this family!

Although the family does have medical insurance, the costs of Katie's treatment will far exceed that coverage, as the surgeon and his hospital are out-of-network providers. Katie's condition is both disfiguring and dangerous, as it's suppression compromises her immune system. Your loving support will make a very real difference for this little girl, her four brothers, and her parents.
